

Disclosure-Affected Buildings

Is my building disclosure-affected?

Do you own/manage a building or an area of a building that is:

- greater than 1000 square metres;
- for administrative, clerical, professional or other information-based activities, including any support facilities those activities; and
- for sale, lease or sublease?

Then it could be disclosure affected. Some office buildings or areas of buildings are not disclosure affected if they are:

- mixed use buildings with less than 75% office space by Net-Lettable-Area;
- new buildings or recently refurbished buildings (if the refurbishment has changed the energy efficiency rating), where there is a certificate of occupancy less than 2 years old;
- strata-titled buildings;
- transferred through the sale of shares or units of interest;
- leased for a period of less than 12 months or by exercising an option to renew or extend an existing lease.

What do I do now?

If you have a disclosure affected building, it will need a Building Energy Efficiency Certificate (BEEC) before it is put to the market for sale or lease as well as the National Australian Built Environment Rating System (NABERS) Energy for offices star rating on all of your advertising material.

BEECs are valid for up to 12 months, must be publicly accessible on the online Building Energy Efficiency Register at www.cbd.gov.au, and include:

- a National Australian Built Environment Rating System (NABERS) Energy for offices star rating for the building
- an assessment of the energy efficiency of tenancy lighting in the area of the building that is being sold or leased.

Standard energy efficiency guidance information previously included on the last 6 pages of the BEEC is now provided online. This includes information on how building owners and tenants might improve a building's energy efficiency and allow the CBD team to provide relevant and targeted energy efficiency information to building owners.

How do I get a Building Energy Efficiency Certificate?

You will need to engage a CBD Accredited Assessor to undertake the assessments you need and apply for a BEEC. You can find a CBD Accredited Assessor listed on the CBD website at www.cbd.gov.au.
